

Dallas Business Journal

Friday, September 11, 2009

Bridgepoint moves in

Dallas Business Journal - by Chad Eric Watt Staff writer

An Austin turnaround and corporate consulting firm has expanded to Dallas with the hiring of Big Four accounting alum Jeff Dempsey.

Bridgepoint Consulting LLC plans to focus the Dallas office on internal audit and corporate governance, two areas where Dempsey specialized in as a practice leader at Deloitte.

His first target will be to aim at mid-cap public companies to help augment their internal auditing resources. It's likely that most mid-size businesses are running that function a little leaner than in years past.

"In this downturn where everybody's got to justify cost, we believe there are opportunities to provide support," Dempsey said.

Bridgepoint was formed in 1999 to create a Texas-focused consulting firm. It also has a Houston office and derives its revenue from a range of businesses and industries.

"One of the things I appreciate about Bridgepoint is they have a large number of clients, no one of which is dominant," Dempsey said.